Course description:

What do great musicians, artists, dancers, surgeons, rappers and even seasoned mediators have in common? The answer is a confounding blend of two fortune cookies "Trust the Process" and "Practice Makes Perfect." These masters of their craft train for years, practice and honing their skills so in the heat of the moment- they can, responsibly, throw caution to the wind and "wing it." As mediators, we must have the confidence and awareness to do the same.

This workshop, facilitated by Mediator and Professional Development Coach Leigh Ann Roberts and Jackie Schlicker, Personal Coach, Actor, Artist and Improv Trainer Extraordinaire, is a deep dive into the playful and sometimes terrifying end of the creative and artful approach to mediation and conflict resolution. Participants will engage in experiential and reflective activities and conversations that will forever impact how they view mediation participants, mediation and their role as mediator in the conflict "dance." This packed 6 hour session will challenge our thinking about the neurological components of problem solving, the valuable role of the somatic awareness, intuition and the mediator identity in what can be an extremely non-linear process. Information helpful to mediators is everywhere, if you are able to hear it and respond in the heat of the moment.

Join us for a exciting day of learning and skill development. Learn from your peers and develop your own unique method for getting in "the zone" of mediation mastery.
